

The School of Geography Planning and Architecture at the University of Queensland, Australia, is seeking an urban planner at Lecturer or Senior Lecturer level. The position comes about because of the growth in the planning and related programs at UQ. We are particularly interested in women or men with research and teaching experience in social or community aspects of urban planning but would also be keen to hear from people with other planning skills and interests.

The university is in the sub-tropical city of Brisbane and located in one of the fastest growing regions in Australia. This location and the problems of regional growth create many urgent urban planning challenges, including resource shortages (especially water), infrastructure planning, governance, social infrastructure, environmental protection and the like.

Further information is available on UQ Seek at <http://seek.com.au/users/apply/index.aspx?Sequence=34&PageNumber=1&JobID=9048494>

Applications close on June 4th.